

Organization | Adjuster

You are a dynamic adapter. You can easily make course corrections on the fly. When situations change, you are ready to change right along with them. You understand that plans are made around certain circumstances. When those circumstances change, you are ready to adapt. While change might upset some people, you thrive on the unexpected events that come your way. You don't just go along with the flow; you try to capitalize on it. In many cases you realize that these changes can be opportunities for those who are willing to adjust.

You will always be at your most productive in a dynamic environment where your ability to see change and respond to it appropriately is a competitive advantage.

You will excel at helping your customers or clients see the need to do things differently. Recognize that not everyone likes change and some are threatened by it. Be sure the adjustments you make are within the guidelines of what is acceptable in your environment.

Collaboration Alert: On a personal note, be careful to avoid overly regulated situations. You may get frustrated and your enthusiasm and productivity can suffer. You need a fast-paced environment to be at your best.

“You thrive on unexpected events that come your way.”

The Science of Performance